

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

ādityā vasavaḥ sādhyā viśve ca marutas tathā | BRP213.070.1

śaraṇyaṁ śaraṇaṁ viṣṇum upatasthur mahābalaṁ || 70 || BRP213.070.2

devabrahmamayaṁ yajñaṁ brahmadevaṁ sanātanaṁ | BRP213.071.1

bhūtaṁ bhavyaṁ bhaviṣyaṁ ca prabhuṁ lokanamaskṛtaṁ | BRP213.071.2

nārāyaṇaṁ vibhuṁ devaṁ śaraṇyaṁ śaraṇaṁ gatāḥ || 71 || BRP213.071.3

— Brahmapurāṇa, Chapter 213: Manifestations of Viṣṇu (Chapter 213), Verse 1

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

The Brahmapurāṇa unveils a profound truth here, depicting the celestial beings – the Ādityas, Vasus, Sādhyas, Viśvadevas, and Maruts – all seeking refuge in Viṣṇu, the ultimate source of strength and protection. This isn't merely a historical account; it's a symbolic representation of the innate human longing for something greater than ourselves. These deities, representing various aspects of cosmic power and natural forces, acknowledge Viṣṇu as their ultimate refuge, highlighting the interconnectedness of all creation and its dependence on the divine.

The verses further describe Viṣṇu as the embodiment of sacrifice (yajña), the eternal Brahman, encompassing the past, present, and future. He is the lord revered by all the worlds, Nārāyaṇa, the all-pervading deity, the refuge of all. The act of seeking refuge implies surrender, a letting go of ego and a recognition of our limitations. This is a crucial lesson for us today. In our modern lives, we often strive for independence and self-reliance, forgetting that true strength lies in acknowledging our dependence on a higher power, whatever form that may take for you.

When you face challenges, anxieties, or uncertainties, remember that Viṣṇu, as the symbol of divine support, is always accessible. Just as the celestial beings sought refuge, you too can find solace and strength by turning inward, connecting with your own inner source of peace and wisdom. This might involve prayer, meditation, spending time in nature, or simply cultivating a sense of gratitude for the blessings in your life. The key is to release the illusion of control and trust in the inherent goodness of the universe. Recognize the eternal, unchanging reality behind the fleeting appearances of the world. By surrendering to this higher power, you can navigate the complexities of life with greater ease and grace.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

In what area of your life are you currently holding on too tightly, and how might surrendering to a higher power bring you greater peace?