

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

devavedadvijātīnām sādhusatyamahātmanām | BRP221.080.1
guroḥ pativratānām ca brahmayajñatapasvinām || 80 || BRP221.080.2

— Brahmapurāṇa, Chapter 221: On the proper conduct (Chapter 221), Verse 1

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

This verse from the Brahmapurāṇa paints a vibrant tapestry of those worthy of reverence and respect, individuals whose lives embody the very essence of dharma. It speaks of the divine, the Vedas, and the twice-born, highlighting the importance of knowledge, spiritual practice, and righteous conduct in your life. The "twice-born" refers to those who have undergone a spiritual initiation, signifying a rebirth into a higher understanding of self and the universe. Consider how you can continually strive for self-improvement and deepen your understanding of sacred texts.

The verse also honors the "sādhus," the virtuous ones, those who live a life dedicated to truth and compassion. It acknowledges the "mahātmanām," the great souls, individuals who have transcended ego and act solely for the benefit of others. These are the role models, the guiding lights that illuminate our path. Think about who you consider to be a "mahātman," and what qualities they possess that you can cultivate within yourself.

Furthermore, the verse extols the "gurus," the spiritual teachers, who guide us on our journey, and the "pativratānām," the devoted wives, representing unwavering loyalty and devotion. It is a reminder of the importance of honoring relationships, both with our mentors and our life partners. Are you nurturing your relationships with respect and appreciation?

Finally, it acknowledges those engaged in "brahmayajña," the daily recitation and study of the Vedas, and the "tapasvinām," those who practice austerity and self-discipline. These are the disciplines that refine your character and bring you closer to the Divine. In modern life, this might translate to setting aside time for meditation, self-reflection, or engaging in practices that foster inner peace and resilience. The verse reminds you that a life lived with intention, devotion, and a commitment to self-improvement is a life truly well-lived. It invites you to cultivate these qualities within yourself, transforming your own life into a testament to the enduring wisdom of the Vedas.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

How can you incorporate even a small act of devotion or self-discipline into your daily routine to honor the spirit of this verse?