

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

gacchadhvaṃ śaraṇaṃ śīghraṃ enam eva maheśvaram | BRP036.046.1

sārdhaṃ mayaiva deveśaṃ paramātmānam avyayam || 46 || BRP036.046.2

tatas te stambhitāḥ sarve tathaiva tridivaukasaḥ | BRP036.047.1

praṇemur manasā śarvaṃ bhāvaśuddhena cetasā || 47 || BRP036.047.2

— Brahmapurāṇa, Chapter 36: Umā's self-choice; the wedding of Śiva and Umā (Chapter 36), Verse 1

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

She emphasizes going to him together, recognizing him as the supreme soul, the unchanging and eternal essence of existence. This isn't simply a suggestion; it's a profound direction toward ultimate truth. The text then describes how the celestial beings, the inhabitants of the heavens, are rendered still and silent by this revelation. They bow down to Śarva (another name for Śiva) in their minds, with hearts purified by devotion and understanding.

What does this mean for you? It speaks to the heart of spiritual practice. Umā's instruction highlights that the divine is not separate from us but is the very ground of our being. Śiva, as the Paramātmā, resides within, waiting to be recognized. The celestial beings' reaction demonstrates the power of this realization. Their stillness is not one of fear, but of profound reverence and inner peace. They quiet their minds, allowing them to connect with the divine presence.

In modern life, you are often bombarded with distractions and external noise, making it difficult to hear the subtle voice of your own soul. This passage reminds you to cultivate inner stillness, to seek refuge in the unchanging reality within yourself. Just as the celestial beings bowed down in their minds, you too can turn inward, purify your thoughts, and connect with the divine essence that resides in your heart. By doing so, you can find peace, clarity, and ultimately, liberation from the cycle of suffering. Trust the wisdom of Umā, and seek Maheśvara, the supreme soul, within. This path towards inner divinity is always accessible, waiting for your sincere devotion and willingness to quiet the mind.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

What small step can you take today to create more stillness in your life and connect with the divine within?