

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

kālaś ca sakṛd abhyeti yaṃ naraṃ kāla.kāṅkṣiṇaṃ | KAZ05.6.31ab durlabhaḥ sa punas tasya kālaḥ karma cikīrṣataḥ || 31 || KAZ05.6.31cd

yauvanasthaṃ ca yāceta viśramaṃ citta.kāraṇāt | KAZ05.6.45ab

parityajed atusyantam tuṣyantam ca-anupālayet || 45 || KAZ05.6.45cd

— Arthaśāstra, Chapter 6 (Sections 94; 95): Continuance of the Kingdom; Continuous Sovereignty (Chapter 6), Verse 1

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

Time, the relentless river, favors those who keenly anticipate its currents. The Arthaśāstra reminds you that opportunity, like a fleeting moment, arrives but once. If you are lax, desiring only to delay, that chance may never return when you are finally ready to act. This speaks to a profound spiritual truth: the universe responds to intention. When your heart is aligned with purpose, the pathways open. Procrastination, born of fear or doubt, closes those doors. Therefore, cultivate a sense of urgency, a readiness to seize the day, and you will find that time becomes your ally, not your adversary.

The text further advises that during youth, one should not seek premature rest driven by fickle desires. Instead, it advocates for discerning leadership: release those who are perpetually discontent and nurture those who find satisfaction in their roles. Spiritually, this reflects the importance of cultivating inner contentment. If you constantly chase external validation or material possessions, you will remain restless and unfulfilled. Learn to appreciate the present moment, the blessings already present in your life, and you will discover a wellspring of inner peace. Moreover, apply discernment in your relationships. Surround yourself with people who uplift and inspire you, and gently release those who drain your energy or sow discord. By cultivating inner peace and mindful relationships, you create a fertile ground for spiritual growth and lasting happiness. The Arthaśāstra, seemingly a text on statecraft, becomes a guide to mastering your inner kingdom.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

Are you actively anticipating the opportunities that life presents, or are you letting them slip by due to hesitation or fear?