

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

ekasminneva puruṣe sāsā buddhistadātadā d bhavatyanityā prajñā hi sā tasyaiva na rocate e niścitya tu yathāprajñam yāṁ matiṁ sādhu paśyati d tayā prakurute bhāvaṁ sā tasyodyogakārikā e sarvo hi puruṣo bhoja sādhvetaditi niścitaḥ d kartumārabhate prītiṁ maraṇādiṣu karmasu e

— 69000 (Chapter 10), Verses 13-15

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

The verses from the Mahabharata delve into the nature of the human intellect and its influence on our actions. They highlight the fluctuating nature of our understanding, noting that wisdom (buddhi) within a single person is not constant. Our intellect shifts, and what seems right at one moment may not resonate later. This impermanence (anityā) means that our initial understanding may not always be the guiding light for our actions.

The scripture then explains that when a person carefully considers something and arrives at a decision based on their best judgment (yathāprajñam), and finds it agreeable, they then act accordingly. This chosen course of action becomes the driving force (udyogakārikā) behind their endeavors. It's about aligning your intellect with your actions, striving for harmony between thought and deed. The key is in thoughtful consideration, not impulsive reaction.

The final verse emphasizes that every person, after deciding that something is beneficial (sādhvetaditi niścitaḥ), commences to act with enthusiasm, even in the face of daunting tasks like confronting mortality (maraṇādiṣu karmasu). This speaks to the human spirit's inherent drive to engage with life fully, even when faced with its inevitable end. It suggests that a well-considered decision, embraced with conviction, fuels our actions and provides us with the strength to face life's challenges.

In modern life, these verses offer profound guidance. Your understanding of situations evolves constantly, and you shouldn't be afraid to reassess your beliefs and choices. Don't blindly adhere to initial impulses; instead, take the time to reflect and make informed decisions. When you do, commit to them wholeheartedly. This conscious alignment of thought and action is crucial for navigating the complexities of life and pursuing your goals with clarity and purpose. Remember, even when faced with difficult or unpleasant tasks, a firm conviction in your chosen path will empower you to persevere. It is important to cultivate discernment and align your actions with your deepest values.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

Are you truly taking the time to thoughtfully consider your decisions, or are you simply reacting to the circumstances around you?