

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

*akrodhanāśca ye nityaṃ devabrāhmaṇapūjakāḥ |
nityaṃ dānaratāścaiva na te gacchantyadhogatiṃ || 18 ||
satyābhidhānasamyuktā duṣkṛtārambhavarjitāḥ |
svadharmakaraṇe saktāḥ paśyanti narakāṇna te || 19 ||*

— Skandapurāṇa, Chapter 52, Verses 18-19

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

These verses from the Skandapurāṇa offer a beautiful roadmap for navigating life with grace and purpose, leading you away from suffering and towards inner peace. The passage emphasizes the importance of cultivating certain qualities and actions that naturally elevate your consciousness. It speaks of those who are consistently free from anger, devoted to honoring the divine and the learned (devabrāhmaṇapūjakāḥ), and generously engaged in acts of giving (dānaratāḥ). The promise is clear: such individuals do not descend into lower states of being (adhogatiṃ), implying a life lived in harmony and a favorable journey beyond.

Furthermore, the scripture highlights the significance of truthfulness (satyābhidhāna), abstaining from harmful actions (duṣkṛtārambhavarjitāḥ), and being diligently engaged in your own dharma (svadharmakaraṇe saktāḥ). Dharma, in this context, refers to your unique purpose, your inherent duties and responsibilities aligned with your nature and stage of life. When you live in accordance with your dharma, with integrity and a commitment to truth, you shield yourself from the torments of hell (narakāṇna te). This isn't necessarily a literal hell, but rather the internal hell of regret, suffering, and disconnection that arises from living a life out of alignment with your true self.

In modern life, these teachings remain profoundly relevant. Cultivating patience and managing anger are essential for healthy relationships and inner well-being. Honoring the divine can manifest as gratitude for the blessings in your life and respect for the wisdom of spiritual traditions. Generosity can be expressed through acts of kindness, volunteering your time, or simply offering a listening ear. Living truthfully, avoiding harmful behaviors, and pursuing your unique purpose are all pathways to a more fulfilling and meaningful existence. When you consistently strive to embody these virtues, you naturally create a life filled with peace and purpose, mitigating suffering and paving the way for spiritual growth. The hells of our own making—anxiety, despair, and meaninglessness—become less potent as you embrace the light of dharma.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

Are you actively cultivating the qualities mentioned in these verses in your daily life, and if not, what is one small step you can take today to move in that direction?