

MyGurukul

SACRED WISDOM — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2026

SACRED TEXT

*kevalajñānasampūrṇaḥ kevalānandasamśritaḥ |
kevaladhyānagamyas ca deveśoyam ihocyate || 39 ||
ityanantaguṇākīrṇam anantaṁ sukhaśālinam |
dhyāyen muktīpadārūḍhaṁ deveśam apunarbhavaṁ || 40 ||*

— Yogapradīpa, Chapter 1, Verses 39-40

GURU'S INTERPRETATION

Verse 39 describes this Lord as "kevalajñānasampūrṇaḥ," overflowing with pure knowledge, complete and absolute. He is "kevalānandasamśritaḥ," resting in the fullness of pure bliss. And crucially, He is "kevaladhyānagamyas ca," attainable only through unwavering, focused meditation. The text emphasizes that the path to experiencing this Divine isn't through intellectual understanding or ritualistic practice alone, but through the profound stillness and clarity cultivated in deep meditation.

Verse 40 further elaborates, stating "ityanantaguṇākīrṇam anantaṁ sukhaśālinam," meaning He is adorned with infinite qualities, a boundless reservoir of happiness. This isn't a fleeting, superficial happiness, but a deep, abiding joy that permeates all existence. The text instructs us to "dhyāyen muktīpadārūḍhaṁ deveśam apunarbhavaṁ," to meditate on this Lord, who is established in the state of liberation, free from the cycle of rebirth. This verse highlights the transformative power of meditation, guiding you towards liberation from suffering and the realization of your true nature.

In modern life, overwhelmed by distractions and anxieties, these verses offer a powerful antidote. The constant pursuit of external validation and material possessions often leaves us feeling empty and unfulfilled. The Yogapradīpa reminds you that true happiness lies within, accessible through the simple act of turning inward. By cultivating a daily practice of meditation, even for a few minutes, you can begin to tap into the infinite reservoir of joy and wisdom that resides within you. You can begin to understand that you are not separate from this Divine essence, but an integral part of it. This realization can bring a sense of peace, purpose, and profound connection to something larger than yourself, even in the midst of the chaos of modern life.

REFLECTION FOR TODAY

Can you identify one small step you can take today to deepen your connection to your inner source of peace and joy?